Misting cologne into the air, a husband grins in the mirror with satisfaction. Everything has been set: a bundle of roses adorns the dining room table, tea light candles glimmer in the entryway, and tucked inside his pocket is an ivory gift box with a diamond bracelet for his wife. He straightens his tie, confident it will be the perfect Valentine’s Day.

Down the street, a club is packed with partiers guzzling specialty drinks and grooving to the thud, thud, thud of overcharged bass. At the bar, a muscular male exchanges seductive glances with a green-eyed brunette until they end up on the dance floor together. Ten blocks away, a third-grader sits at home, holding a card given to her by a boy in her class earlier that day. While students had munched on chalky candy hearts and colored pictures of cupid, the teacher told them about the day’s origins.

Across the world, people consider Valentine’s Day a time to celebrate what is called love, in any form. It is a day for grandparents to show affection to grandchildren, husbands to wives, brothers to sisters, boyfriends to girlfriends.

In the Philippines, thousands of couples participate in the world’s largest kissing event. In Nigeria, husbands and wives dine at restaurants with family. In Brazil, concerts featuring romantic samba music occur nationwide.

While wearing hearts, being “in love,” and showing a “special someone” how much you care by gifting a teddy bear, chocolates or flowers may seem perfectly innocent, here is another side to this “Day for Lovers” most fail to consider.

Modern-Day Look

Valentine’s Day is a booming multimillion-dollar industry. The Greeting Card Association says approximately 190 million Valentine’s Day cards are sent each year, excluding the hundreds of millions that schoolchildren exchange. Also, it is the number-one holiday for florists, with more than 108 million roses produced yearly for it.

According to the National Retail Survey, the average person spent an estimated $142.31 for Valentine’s Day on candy, flowers, apparel and more in 2015—up from $133.91 the previous year.

Valentine's Day Edition 2020

Lupercalia, was held every year on February as the month of Gamelion fertility, said classics professor Noel Lenski of the University of Colorado Boulder. The annual pagan celebration, called Lupercalia even further. Instead of putting the names of girls into a box, the names of “saints” were drawn by both boys and girls. It was then each person’s duty to emulate the life of the saint whose name he or she had drawn.

Today, Cupid’s arrow has become an accepted symbol of love. His name and image are frequently associated with Valentine’s Day cards, romantic gifts, and dating services, as well as in the heart symbol, which is said to be the seat of emotion. The sexual side of Valentine’s Day shows its face even in the supposedly harmless parts of the day. A common symbol of this day is Cupid, often pictured as a chubby, winged baby that shoots arrows to make people fall in love. This Roman god’s name derives from the Latin word caput, meaning “head.”

Although no one really knows the exact origins of Valentine’s Day, there are a few fitting stories to help explain why February 14th is a celebration of love and romance. There were three patrons named St. Valentine who were martyred in ancient Rome. One was put to death by Claudius in the 3rd century for performing marriage ceremonies against the decree of the Emperor. Another was executed for attempting to help Christians escape from Roman jails. And in another tale, St. Valentine penned the first Valentine Day card while imprisoned, signing it “From Your Valentine” – a phrase widely adopted today.

In lieu of historical accuracy, here are some interesting Valentine’s Day facts for the here and now:

They’re Spoken For – There are over 15 million Canadians living together as a couple; this figure includes common-law partners and same and opposite sex relationships.

They’re Eligible – There are more than 11 million Canadians who are single, a good size dating pool for those looking for love!

Who’s Celebrating? – 81% of Canadians plan on celebrating Valentine’s Day in some shape or form with their significant others, and 52% will include their children and other family members in on the fun.

A Token of Love – The most popular Valentine’s Day gifts remain the classics: cards, candy, and flowers. Although the emphasis is usually on those in romantic relationships, 38% of single Canadians plan on giving gifts to loved ones.

A Frugal Trend? – In 2007, Canadians anticipated spending an average of $92.10 on gifts for Valentine’s Day. By 2012, that number had dropped to $37 per person.

Geographic Gifting – Albertans and Quebeckers spend most of their Valentine’s Day gift budget on flowers, Ontarians on jewellery, while British Columbians earmark the most money for candy.

Battle of the Sexes – Women polled were asked who should pay for the Valentine’s Day date; 33% said the man, 31% said it should be split, 31% said it should alternate back and forth, and 5% said the woman should ante up. When men were polled with the same question, 58% said the man should pay, 21% said it should alternate, 17% opted to go Dutch, and 4% said the woman should pay.

Looking for Love – 54% of men and 50% of women who are single are hoping to find someone special for Valentine’s Day.

Good to Know – 80% of Canadian women between the ages of 24 and 54 preferred to receive their Valentine’s Day message in person, while 2% of those polled preferred a phone call or text message.

Awww! – 44% of women and 45% of men said that their ideal Valentine’s Day gift was simply “spending time together” over and above receiving a gift. Now that’s amore!
